

How to Calculate the New Types of Paid Leave under the FFCRA

Analysis of types of paid leave under Families First Coronavirus Response Act (effective April 2 - December 31, 2020)

- Applicable to Employers with up to 500 employees (and those small businesses with up to 50 employees who do not qualify for an exemption to FFCRA)
- Applicable if the company has work or telework available to be performed by the employees.
- Total Leave period is a maximum of 12 weeks, and their job is protected during this time.

1 If a Full Time Employee is unable to work or telework because:

- a. They are under Federal/state/local quarantine or isolation order related to COVID-19;

- b. They are advised by health care provider to self-quarantine due to COVID-19 concerns; or
- c. They are experiencing COVID-19 symptoms and seeking a diagnosis,
- d. They are caring for an individual who is subject to federal/state/local quarantine or isolation order or advised by health care provider to self-quarantine due to COVID-19 concerns;
- e. They are caring for their child, if the child’s school or place or care is closed or the child’s care provider is unavailable due to public health emergency; or
- f. They are experiencing any other substantially similar conditions specified by the Sec. of Health & Human Services in consultation with the Sec. of Treasury and Sec. of Labor.

THEN: Employer must pay Emergency Paid SICK LEAVE.

- 5 If the company already offered any kind of PAID LEAVE prior to FFCRA, the leave provided under FFCRA is in addition to the company's sick leave option.
- Employers "may not change" their current paid leave policies in order to avoid the impact of the law.
  - In addition, employers may not require employees to take/exhaust any of their employer-provided leave time before taking emergency paid sick leave time under the FFCRA.
  - Employers also may not require employees who take emergency paid sick leave to find any replacement employees to take the absent employees' place at work during their absence.
- 6 Companies with fewer than 25 employees – Under the previous version of FMLA, employers must restore employees who take public health emergency leave to their previous position or an equivalent position upon their return from leave.

NOW: the FFCRA relaxes this requirement in certain circumstances for employers who employ fewer than 25 employees. In particular, those smaller employers do not need to restore an employee to his or her job following public health emergency leave if:

- 1) the "position held by the employee when the leave commenced does not exist due to economic conditions or other changes in operating conditions of the employer (i) that affect employment; and (ii) are caused by a public health emergency during the period of leave";
  - 2) the employer makes "reasonable efforts" to restore the employee to an equivalent position; and
  - 3) if the employer's "reasonable efforts" fail, the employer makes "reasonable efforts" to contact the employee if an equivalent position becomes available during the following year.
    - DOL intends to allow a 30-day compliance period for Employers to meet their obligations under the FFCRA before it will pursue any enforcement actions against noncompliant Employers, so long as the employer acted in good faith in an effort to comply with the statute.
- 7 Barring amendments to the FFCRA, all of these expanded FMLA requirements will expire at the end of 2020.
- 8 Notice Requirements
- DOL is due to issue required Notice Posters and additional guidance to help companies comply with new requirements. Covered Employers will be required to post and keep posted, in conspicuous places, a notice regarding emergency paid sick leave.
